

Home Enteral Nutrition

Updated 28 February 2012

What is it?

The Home Enteral Nutrition Scheme aims to support people living in the community who are unable to maintain their nutrition through oral intake. Your treating medical practitioner can provide specific information regarding enteral nutrition needs.

Who is eligible?

A referral by a treating medical practitioner is required.

Eligibility is available to ACT residents who have regular appointments with a dietician, agree to have their information stored on a database and meet the co-payment of $45 per participant per week.

How do I apply?

To apply for the scheme contact your dietician or treating medical practitioner.

Who runs it?

The Health Directorate.
